Dear Donors,

2021 was an eventful year on many fronts. For many, it was extremely challenging due to the Covid lockdowns, resulting in disruptions to the world’s supply chains, while for some it was a year of growth.

While many of our affiliates did struggle to deliver their services as effectively as they would like, for Food for Life Global it was a capacity-building year that saw us hire 40 consultants over the year to fulfill various professional needs and expand our staff to 10 full-time professionals serving in 8 countries.

There was also a major shift in donation trends, with our cryptocurrency donations exceeding our traditional funding sources. This was a result of Food for Life Global being listed on The Giving Block and becoming one of the first nonprofits in the world to accept cryptocurrency donations!

We put these donations to good use in a number of ways:

1. We invested in building our capacity by hiring more staff and specialists to help us improve the services we offer our network of affiliates
2. We provided financial support to over 30 projects in our network
3. We expanded our capacity for advocacy to the public and education within our network, by creating the Food Yoga online Academy and the Food for Life Global online Academy.
4. We cofounded The Kindly Ecosystem, a web3 crypto project that will serve to support Food for Life Global with regular donations.

We also received a lot of great publicity through online and offline articles in major publications, including FORBES.com and appearances on popular podcasts.

All in all, it was a great year of growth and we have you to thank for this expansion!

In Kindness,

Paul Rodney Turner
Founder & President
While our projects vary, all are governed by the following principles:

Welfare: Provide pure plant-based meals to anyone who is disadvantaged, malnourished, a victim of disaster.

Hospitality: Revive the ancient Vedic culture of spiritual hospitality, teaching through example that spiritual equality exists among all beings.

Non-Violence: Reduce the number of animals slaughtered for food by giving as many people as possible the higher taste of “karma-free” plant-based meals.

Health: Teach the value of plant-based meals for improving the health of the body and mind.

Education: Educate others on the art and science of food yoga as an integral part of consciousness development.

Animal Advocacy: Support animal rescue projects as a powerful way to demonstrate the equality of all life through direct experience.

Kindly is a Social impact-based web project co-founded by FFLG.

The Kindly Ecosystem (Kindly) will empower the work of Food for Life and other charity partners through regular donations. Once the ecosystem becomes fully operational, Kindly will look to decentralize various aspects of the project and utilize the Kindly token to implement voting and governance mechanisms.

Social Impacts

Kindly will be launched with 3 credible charity partners.

• Food for Life Global (feeding people in need)
• Juliana’s Animal Sanctuary (feeding rescued animals)
• Eden Reforestation Project (planting trees)

Make it easy to be kind

Through the creation of convenient and easy-to-use products, Kindly intends to facilitate effortless un-random acts of kindness. With their goal of creating a decentralized platform for automating the ability to purchase and execute measurable social impact.
